10 Per Cent Income Surcharge To Become Effective July 14

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unless you have a rockbottom income you will begin paying higher income taxes July 14 to help pay for the Vietnam war and to keep the Great Society moving.

On that date the withholding rate on your paycheck will increase 10 per cent, under the income tax bill President Johnson signed into law Friday.

If you get paid July 13 you won't feel the bite until the next payday.

Signing of the bill, which includes a mandatory $6-billion cut in federal spending, came without fanfare one week after Congress completed action and was in marked contrast to the raging controversy of nearly the entire past year.

With only Mrs. Johnson, grandson Lyn and a few aides looking on, Johnson signed it on the White House lawn.

Johnson opposed the spending cuts, he hinted in his statement he will try to pinpoint reductions to save Great Society programs.

Miss Cheryl Lynn Stolp, a student majoring in news and editorial writing in the school of journalism of the University of Missouri in Columbia, is working this summer for the Daily Standard as assistant editor of the women's page.

She will be a senior when she returns to the University this fall. She worked for the Columbia Missourian during the past school year under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Roe Lewis, former general women's news editor for the Associated Press.

Born and reared in Springfield, Miss Stolp is 23. She worked on the Springfield Leader & Press in the classified advertising department two years, before entering the University. She attended Southwest Missouri State College in Springfield one year.

Her hobbies and interests include: swimming, golf, tennis and cooking.

Johnson again insisted his budget was lean and tight, but said he accepted the spending cuts "because the tax bill is so imperative to the economic health of the nation."

Johnson said the nation's economy is now moving too fast and the tax package will apply the fiscal brakes.

But Johnson said Congress cannot hope to cut $6 billion from his budget through the regular appropriation process and this will shift responsibility for the cuts to the President.

This departure from tradition is "most unwise," he said. He also contended Congress acted unwisely in ordering federal employment rolled back to the level of two years ago by not filling one in every four job vacancies.

Six months ago the University added a new program, authorized under the state technical services act. The program is designed to place new technology at the disposal of industry.

Eight were injured in highway accidents Friday and three today.

Two were injured Friday at 9:30 p.m. on highway 62 in Miner in a car-truck collision.

Both were taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

A 1960 Rambler, traveling west on highway 62, driven by Richard Rinard, 21, Blytheville, attempted a left turn into Interstate-55, in front of a 1967 Plymouth, driven by Vernon Rogers, 22, Sikeston.

The Rogers car swerved to avoid striking the Rinard car, and struck a 1967 GMC pickup truck, driven by Thomas Holmes, 42, Bertrand, almost headon.

Injured in the Rogers car were Lavern Gloria Gossett, 22, Sikeston, who received a fractured collarbone and bruises, and a passenger in the Holmes truck, Linnie Holmes, 37, Bertrand, who received face and arm cuts.

Friday at 8:30 p.m. on route J in Stoddard county, James Abernathy, 14, St. Louis, fell off a Ford farm tractor, driven by Dale Gray, 14, Puxico.

The St. Louis youth struck his head on the road. This condition is serious. He was taken to Lucy Lee hospital in Poplar Bluff, and transferred to Barnes hospital in St. Louis.

Friday at 6:50 a.m. on route Z, one mile north of Morehouse, a 1959 John Deere farm tractor, driven by Alvin Barnes, 56, Bell City, attempted a left turn on a gravel road, and was struck in Driving a 1952 Chevrolet pickup truck, she pulled from a store drive into the highway into the path of a 1964 Chevrolet, driven by Larry Davis, 18, Dudley.

A two-car accident Friday at 5:50 a.m. on highway 67, three miles south of Fredericktown, resulted in cuts on the chin and face, to Oscar Bellevue, 59, Saco, driver of a 1952 Plymouth.

Bellevue struck a curb, lost control and drove into the path of a 1964 Oldsmobile, driven by Marshall Surrott, 22, South Bend, Ind.

Bellevue was taken to Madison County Memorial hospital in Fredericktown.

Today at 12:45 a.m. on highway 61, two miles south of Steele, an accident involving a 1964 Buick, driven by Hayes Brown, 21, Chicago, resulted to injuries to three.

Brown was reported by the patrol to have been speeding when he lost control and his car overturned.

The driver received bruises and cuts. Two passengers, both of Chicago, were hurt. Barbara Brown, 18, received forehead cuts and Johnny Harrison, 18, face cuts and bruises.

All were taken to Pemiscot County Memorial hospital, in Hayti.

Vicious Viet Cong Attack Destroys Refugee Village

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong troops throwing explosives into huts blasted apart a small fishing village today and killed 88 persons, a U.S. spokesman said, in what "may be one of the worst atrocities of the war."

One American officer said the villagers at Son Tra, 345 miles northeast of Saigon, had refused to supply the Viet Cong with recruits and the guerrillas had threatened to burn the town.

The U.S. Command said 73 civilians and 15 paramilitary government pacification workers were killed and another 103 refugees wounded in the 30-minute attack. The guerrilla force numbered at least 75 and perhaps as many as 300. South Vietnamese headquarters said.

Many of the civilians were burned alive. They had taken shelter in bunkers under their homes when the Viet Cong opened up with mortars at about midnight, but sheets of fire spread from hut to hut when the guerrillas began throwing in satchel charges.

Other residents of the refugee settlement of 4,000 fled toward the positions of 14 U.S.

De Gaulle Foes

Protest TV Plea

PARIS (AP) — Ignoring opposition protests, President Charles de Gaulle made a televised appeal today to Frenchmen on the eve of Sunday's runoff round of the parliamentary election.

Anti-Gaullists claim the president's expected attempt to get out the voters, violates a legal ban on use of the state-owned radio and television for electoral propaganda on election eve.

The Board of City Directors of Pasadena, Calif., home town of Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, accused of assassinating Robert F. Kennedy, turned down a proposal to require registration of guns. A resolution calling for investigation of possible gun control ordinances lost on a tie vote, 3 to 3.

In San Antonio, Tex., a city councilman asked for an ordinance prohibiting the sale of hand guns to the insane, mentally incompetent, narcotics addicts or convicted felons. The proposal failed for lack of a second after the city attorney expressed doubt that such a law would stand up in court.

However, looking ahead to the Republican National Convention in August, the Miami Beach, Fla., City Council adopted an ordinance requiring police permits for gun purchases and registration of all guns and providing jail terms for possession of unlicensed arms.

In Chicago, a city gun registration law became effective May 15 and city residents turned 1,211 guns in to police, who planned to melt the weapons into scrap iron. But another 60 persons were soon arrested for ignoring the ordinance.

Los Angeles has a city ordinance against carrying a concealed weapon without a police permit. Few permits are issued, but Police Inspector Otho Woods estimated "there are probably an excess of 2-million weapons in the city."

Los Angeles county officials are discussing a proposed county ordinance which would prohibit ownership of guns not registered with police.

Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco issued a plea for city residents to give their guns to the police. A total of 690 weapons have been surrendered, including one rocket launcher, and Alioto said "we're expecting lots more."

Benny Bufano, a San Francisco sculptor, proposed melting down the surrendered guns and making a statue of St. Francis out of the metal, with heads of John F. Kennedy, Robert F. Kennedy, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and Abraham Lincoln decorating the saint's robe. The mayor approved the idea and said he would ask the city to provide a site for the statue.

Marines assigned to help guard the town and blocked the Marines' line of fire toward the attackers, one Leatherneck said.

Government headquarters said pacification workers killed 12 Viet Cong in the battle.

Fires touched off by the explosives destroyed 85 per cent of the village of about five city blocks.

In a similar attack last December on a refugee resettlement village, the Viet Cong killed 114 Montagnard civilians and wounded 47 with flame throwers and machine guns at Dak Son, 100 miles north of Saigon.

Son Tra was defended by 14 Marines, perhaps 30 government militiamen, about 35 pacification workers and a small group of self defense youth, government headquarters said.

The militiamen and Marines form a "Combined Action Platoon," which lives and works with the villagers, giving them technical assistance and medical aid and trying to protect them.

The village is only five miles southeast of the headquarters of the U.S. Army Americal Division at Chu Lai and a company of American infantrymen from the 198th Light Infantry Brigade, based near the village, landed by helicopter on the Marines' hill position about 30 minutes after the attack. But the infantrymen did not sweep into the village until dawn, six hours after the attack.

Turn-in-Gun Appeals Go Largely Unheeded

NEW YORK (AP) — Appeals for American gun owners to cast a vote against violence by surrendering their weapons have yielded meager returns, an Associated Press survey indicated today.

The public response has been particularly unenthusiastic in cities with a recent history of racial violence.

Indications that a proposed federal gun registration law faces hard sledding in Congress have prompted some cities and counties to action on their own.

But so far, such instances of gun control at the local level are few and far between.

The Board of City Directors of Pasadena, Calif., home town of Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, accused of assassinating Robert F. Kennedy, turned down a proposal to require registration of guns. A resolution calling for investigation of possible gun control ordinances lost on a tie vote, 3 to 3.

Occupancy Of Housing Postponed

The eight one-bedroom apartments on Cresap and Harris streets built under the leased-housing program, which had been announced as ready for occupancy Monday, will not be accepted by the Sikeston Housing Authority until July 15.

Billy C. Hanna, housing authority director, said the construction of other buildings near the apartments constitute hazards to the elderly persons, who will occupy the apartments.

By July 15, the area around the apartments is expected to be cleared and the buildings will be occupied then, he said.

Hearing on

Street, Alley

Closing Plans

A public hearing is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the city administration building, 316 South Kingshighway.

Two proposed items of business will be discussed.

The first calls for closing Fletcher Street from the south side of Cresap street to the south side of Cresap Addition.

The second calls for closing an alley from Wilson street west approximately 110 feet. The alley is only 62 feet north of Cresap street.

Home Health

Agency Formed

For Medicare

BENTON—The Scott County Health Center has organized a home health agency which will be qualified to make home health visits under the medicare program.

The agency will work in cooperation with the county health center and under a board of advisors.

Patients, who qualify for medicare benefits and are home bound may be referred by their doctor if he determines that they need this service and sets up a plan for their home health care.

Mrs. Lou Ella Tucker has been employed as Home Health aide. The advisory board is composed of Mrs. Rachelle Jacobs, a registered nurse, 572 Park, Sikeston; Thomas Arnold, attorney, Benton; the Rev. J. W. Gwin, 1006 Maude, Sikeston; Dr. Wm. Shell, 1211 Sikes, Sikeston; and Norman Spitzmiller, 533 Greer, Sikeston.

The administrator of the Scott County Home Health Agency is Dr. Thelma C. Buckthorpe. The clerk-secretary is Mrs. Barbara Welter.

House Indicts Hasler

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri House of Representatives virtually closed the door on the second special legislative session Friday after approving articles of impeachment charging St. Louis County Circuit Judge John D. Hasler of Ladue with misconduct, corruption in office and incompetency.

The House agreed with the Senate to adjourn the session Monday after brief administrative sessions.

The articles of impeachment were the result of an investigation by a special House committee last spring and a day and a half of public hearings by the House.

Chief witnesses were Mrs. Jean Shelby of Poplar Bluff and her estranged husband, Delmar Shelby of St. Ann. He filed a divorce suit against her and it was assigned to Judge Hasler's court.

Mrs. Shelby testified the judge wrote intimate letters to her telling her how to file a cross bill in the divorce case. She kept the letters despite Hasler's request that she burn them. She said her husband took them out of her pocketbook and he said he made them public.

Shelby testified he was the father of three of Mrs. Shelby's three children. The divorce is still pending in another division of the St. Louis County Circuit Court and Shelby has custody of the three older children.

Judge Hasler and his attorney, Bertram Elam of Webster Groves, sat on the sidelines during the House hearing but refused an invitation to testify even behind locked doors.

Under impeachment procedure the final hearing of the charges against Judge Hasler will be held by the Missouri Supreme Court.

The only other business completed by the special session that began June 20 was enactment of a $40 million capital improvements bill. It was the primary reason for the session, called by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes after the Legislature failed to enact a similar appropriation measure.

GOP Delegate

Dispute Rages on

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Missouri Republicans went into their state convention today with disputes over delegates at large still unsettled.

All-night efforts to resolve the controversy apparently did nothing to clear the air.

Rep. Thomas B. Curtis of Webster Groves, seeking the Republican nomination for U.S. senator, told the delegates faulty foreign and domestic policies have injured the nation seriously.

"We as a nation have suffered a severe setback in world leadership," he said.

"Domestically and economically the nation is also confused and following contradictory policies."

Curtis made his charges in a keynote address prepared for the big GOP meeting.

Los Angeles has a city ordinance against carrying a concealed weapon without a police permit. Few permits are issued, but Police Inspector Otto Woods estimated "there are probably an excess of 2-million weapons in the city."

Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco issued a plea for city residents to give their guns to the police. A total of 690 weapons have been surrendered, including one rocket launcher, and Alioto said "we're expecting lots more."

Benny Bufano, a San Francisco sculptor, proposed melting down the surrendered guns and making a statue of St. Francis out of the metal, with heads of John F. Kennedy, Robert F. Kennedy, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and Abraham Lincoln decorating the saint's robe. The mayor approved the idea and said he would ask the city to provide a site for the statue.

Vicious Viet Cong Attack Destroys Refugee Village

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong troops throwing explosives into huts blasted apart a small fishing village today and killed 88 persons, a U.S. spokesman said, in what "may be one of the worst atrocities of the war."

One American officer said the villagers at Son Tra, 345 miles northeast of Saigon, had refused to supply the Viet Cong with recruits and the guerrillas had threatened to burn the town.

The U.S. Command said 73 civilians and 15 paramilitary government pacification workers were killed and another 103 refugees wounded in the 30-minute attack. The guerrilla force numbered at least 75 and perhaps as many as 300, South Vietnamese headquarters said.

Many of the civilians were burned alive. They had taken shelter in bunkers under their homes when the Viet Cong opened up with mortars at about midnight, but sheets of fire spread from hut to hut when the guerrillas began throwing in satchel charges.

Other residents of the refugee settlement of 4,000 fled toward the positions of 14 U.S. Marines assigned to help guard the town and blocked the Marines' line of fire toward the attackers, one Leatherneck said.

Government headquarters said pacification workers killed 12 Viet Cong in the battle. Fires touched off by the explosives destroyed 85 per cent of the village of about five city blocks.

In a similar attack last December on a refugee resettlement village, the Viet Cong killed 114 Montagnard civilians and wounded 47 with flame throwers and machine guns at Dak Son, 100 miles north of Saigon.

Son Tra was defended by the 14 Marines, perhaps 30 government militiamen, about 35 pacification workers and a small group of self defense youth, government headquarters said.

The militiamen and Marines form a "Combined Action Platoon," which lives and works with the villagers, giving them technical assistance and medical aid and trying to protect them.

The village is only five miles southeast of the headquarters of the U.S. Army Americal Division at Chu Lai and a company of American infantrymen from the 198th Light Infantry Brigade, based near the village, landed by helicopter on the Marines' hill position about 30 minutes after the attack. But the infantrymen did not sweep into the village until dawn, six hours after the attack.

SAIGON (AP) — Appeals for American gun owners to cast a vote against violence by surrendering their weapons have yielded meager returns, an Associated Press survey indicated today.

The public response has been particularly unenthusiastic in cities with a recent history of racial violence. Indications that a proposed federal gun registration law faces hard sledding in Congress have prompted some cities and counties to action on their own. But so far, such instances of gun control at the local level are few and far between.

The Board of City Directors of Pasadena, Calif., home town of Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, accused of assassinating Robert F. Kennedy, turned down a proposal to require registration of guns. A resolution calling for investigation of possible gun control ordinances lost on a tie vote, 3 to 3.

In San Antonio, Tex., a city councilman asked for an ordinance prohibiting the sale of hand guns to the insane, mentally incompetent, narcotics addicts or convicted felons. The proposal failed for lack of a second after the city attorney expressed doubt that such a law would stand up in court.

However, looking ahead to the Republican National Convention in August, the Miami Beach, Fla., City Council adopted an ordinance requiring police permits for gun purchases and registration of all guns and providing jail terms for possession of unlicensed arms.

In Chicago, a city gun registration law became effective May 15 and city residents turned 1,211 guns in to police, who planned to melt the weapons into scrap iron. But another 60 persons were soon arrested for ignoring the ordinance.

Occupancy Of Housing Postponed

The eight one-bedroom apartments on Cresap and Harris streets built under the leased-housing program, which had been announced as ready for occupancy Monday, will not be accepted by the Sikeston Housing Authority until July 15.

Billy C. Hanna, housing authority director, said the construction of other buildings near the apartments constitute hazards to the elderly persons who will occupy the apartments.

By July 15, the area around the apartments is expected to be cleared and the buildings will be occupied then, he said.

Hearing on Street, Alley Closing Plans

A public hearing is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the city administration building, 316 South Kingshighway.

Two proposed items of business will be discussed. The first calls for closing Fletcher Street from the south side of Cresap street to the south side of Cresap Addition.

The second calls for closing an alley from Wilson street west approximately 110 feet. The alley is only 62 feet north of Cresap street.

Home Health Agency Formed For Medicare

BENTON—The Scott County Health Center has organized a home health agency which will be qualified to make home health visits under the medicare program.

The agency will work in cooperation with the county health center and under a board of advisors.

Patients, who qualify for medicare benefits and are home bound may be referred by their doctor if he determines that they need this service and sets up a plan for their home health care.

Mrs. Lou Ella Tucker has been employed as Home Health aide. The advisory board is composed of Mrs. Rachelle Jacobs, a registered nurse, 572 Park, Sikeston; Thomas Arnold, attorney, Benton; the Rev. J. W. Gwin, 1006 Maude, Sikeston; Dr. Wm. Shell, 1211 Sikes, Sikeston; and Norman Spitzmiller, 533 Greer, Sikeston.

The administrator of the Scott County Home Health Agency is Dr. Thelma C. Buckthorpe. The clerk-secretary is Mrs. Barbara Welter.

House Indicts Hasler

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri House of Representatives virtually closed the door on the second special legislative session Friday after approving articles of impeachment charging St. Louis County Circuit Judge John D. Hasler of Ladue with misconduct, corruption in office and incompetency.

The House agreed with the Senate to adjourn the session Monday after brief administrative sessions.

The articles of impeachment were the result of an investigation by a special House committee last spring and a day and a half of public hearings by the House.

Chief witnesses were Mrs. Jean Shelby of Poplar Bluff and her estranged husband, Delmar Shelby of St. Ann. He filed a divorce suit against her and it was assigned to Judge Hasler's court.

Mrs. Shelby testified the judge wrote intimate letters to her telling her how to file a cross bill in the divorce case. She kept the letters despite Hasler's request that she burn them. She said her husband took them out of her pocketbook and he said he made them public.

Shelby testified he was the father of three of Mrs. Shelby's three children. The divorce is still pending in another division of the St. Louis County Circuit Court and Shelby has custody of the three older children.

Judge Hasler and his attorney, Bertram Elam of Webster Groves, sat on the sidelines during the House hearing but refused an invitation to testify even behind locked doors.

Under impeachment procedure the final hearing of the charges against Judge Hasler will be held by the Missouri Supreme Court.

The only other business completed by the special session that began June 20 was enactment of a $40 million capital improvements bill. It was the primary reason for the session, called by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes after the Legislature failed to enact a similar appropriation measure.

GOP Delegate Dispute Rages on

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Missouri Republicans went into their state convention today with disputes over delegates at large still unsettled.

All-night efforts to resolve the controversy apparently did nothing to clear the air.

Rep. Thomas B. Curtis of Webster Groves, seeking the Republican nomination for U.S. senator, told the delegates faulty foreign and domestic policies have injured the nation seriously.

"We as a nation have suffered a severe setback in world leadership," he said. "Domestically and economically, the nation is also confused and following contradictory policies."

INDEPENDENCE DAY

The 4th of July is upon us again, and there should be a firm rededication to the principles and ideals that brought forth the "great experiment" in human liberty -- the United States.

It is customary to recall with reverence an immortal remark of one of the nation's founders on this most important of dates, but perhaps at this time in our history, it would be more timely to quote a contemporary, an instructor in political science at Mercy College, New York. The professor says, "the Constitution is just a piece of paper which can be scrapped if it has outlived its usefulness. Just like anything else." According to his remarks, as reported in the Portland, Oregon, Journal, the basic political and cultural system of the United States must be revised even if it means a revolution culminating in violence.

Fortunately, the professor is protected by the very Constitution he belittles. Like any other citizen, he may speak his mind without fear, which in itself shows that we have kept faith with the founders of our nation. Because of this faith, the professor may speak with interpenetration. Our detractors notwithstanding, the 4th of July has a deep meaning for most American citizens, and it will be so commemorated this year as it always has been in the past.

QUEEN OF THE SWEEPSTAKES

In Irish Derby, which will be run today, is the second of the three races a year on which the Irish Sweepstakes is based. The first, the Lincolnshire, was held March 27. The third, the Cambridgeshire, is scheduled for Oct. 19. The Irish Sweepstakes is the world's best known lottery. It was established in 1930 to benefit the Irish Hospitals Trust, and more than $450 million in prize money has been distributed to date. Individual prizes are large, but the odds against winning one are even larger.

It is illegal in the United States to import, send through the mails, or ship in interstate commerce any sweepstakes tickets. Nevertheless, thousands of Americans bet in the Irish Sweepstakes every year. Books of tickets are sent from Ireland in modest envelopes bearing no return address but containing a slip of paper indicating where to send a bank draft for the amount wagered.

The Post Office Department's main line of defense against Sweepstakes remittances is the foreign fraud order. This informs local postmasters that envelopes addressed to a suspected Irish Sweepstakes mail drop contain unmailable matter. Envelopes so addressed are returned to the sender. A Post Office spokesman says "several hundred" mail fraud orders a year are issued against Irish Sweepstakes mail drops. Even so, the Department believes that bookies and couriers account for the bulk of the traffic in Sweepstakes tickets.

HONEYMOON: A short period of doting between dating and debting.

Next Thursday is the Fourth of July. What do you suppose our ancestors of that day 192 years ago would think of today's flag burners, conscientious objectors, "peace" demonstrators? Thank God we had young men those days who praised the Lord while passing the ammunition. Those good people of that day, and we are confident our great-grandfathers were among them, never dreamed what a magnificent country they were building, nor what weaklings some of their descendants would be.

SUMMER THOUGHTS

The warming sun and the breezes of spring herald the coming of another summer season. For a large percentage of our population--our young people--the coming of summer means just one thing, the end of school. Every student, whether this summer means lazy days at the old swimming hole, a summer job, baseball in the school yard or the beginning of a career, should keep in mind one thing about the world around him--it is changing more quickly than we can imagine. Academic training can give an invaluable store of knowledge of our history and our heritage, of human relations, of technical matters with concrete commercial value. It can give preparation to meet the world as it exists on the day of graduation. But the day after, the week after, the year after, new knowledge, new reactions, new circumstances will pile up. The summer season may mark the end of school days for three months or for the rest of a person's life, but it does not mark an end to the need for learning and growing in order to keep up with and contribute to the fast paced world around us.

So, find the fun of summer, let it bring exhilaration, refreshment and the perception to find knowledge and understanding in the blooming of a buttercup and the flame of a sunrise as well as in the schoolroom, library or laboratory. Successful living must be based on constant enlargement of all kinds of knowledge.

When people hear a piece of gossip, they never stop to ask, before repeating it: "Is it probable?"

How we all praise the man who lives out of town! And how we abuse our neighbors!

BOTH PARTIES ASKED TO PLEDGE RETENTION OF 14(B)

Grassroots Support Shows Issue Cuts Across Party Lines

The nation's two major political parties will hold conventions in August to nominate Presidential and Vice Presidential candidates and also adopt party platforms.

These national political conventions will be the first to be held since the U.S. Senate -- reflecting the viewpoint of most Democratic, Republican and Independent voters--rejected the bill proposing repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Will the 1968 platforms of the rival political parties include forthright statements on Section 14(b)? Will those platforms promise retention or repeal of this fundamental provision in our Federal labor law?

With the following 44 words Section 14(b) reaffirms the constitutional right of the people and their State legislatures to outlaw all forms of compulsory unionism by enacting Right To Work laws:

"Nothing in this Act shall be considered as authorizing the execution or application of agreements requiring membership in a labor organization as a condition of employment in any State or Territory in which such execution or application is prohibited by State or Territorial law."

Repeal of Section 14(b) was demanded three years ago by AFL-CIO president George Meany and other labor professionals.

Bowing to intense pressure exerted by an army of Washington-based union lobbyists, a slim majority of the U.S. House of Representatives approved the repeal bill on July 28, 1965.

Later, however, the bill was killed in the Senate by a bipartisan coalition organized by Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen (R-Illinois) and Senator Sam J. Ervin, Jr. (D-North Carolina). The coalition included 23 Democratic and 26 Republicans.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: Army again subjects Pvt. Decker to forcible inoculation; Petition to recall Regan gains momentum; Secretary Rusk tackles mushroom crisis.

WASHINGTON--For the second time in two months, two burly sergeants pinned down Pvt. Richard Decker the other day while an army nurse inoculated him contrary to his religious convictions.

His beliefs are so devout that, rather than submit to the second round of inoculations, he deserted the army and came to us to explain his reasons. He was willing to serve in Vietnam or accept a 20-year sentence at hard labor, he said, rather than violate "the Lord's Commandments."

We persuaded him to return to his post at Fort Knox, Ky., and promised to intervene with the army in his behalf. Although we disagree with his religious views, we told his story to Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor, who took the case up with his top generals.

He called back to report that they had decided Decker would have to be inoculated. We appealed to him to reverse their decision, and he agreed to reconsider the case. While he was reconsidering, here is what happened to Decker.

He was summoned to see Lt. Col. Clark Williams, the post surgeon general, who explained the medical reasons why he should take preventive medicine. A chaplain also tried vainly to persuade Decker to submit to inoculations. The slight, sincere young soldier said he felt the same way about compulsory inoculations as the chaplain might feel about being forced to commit sodomy.

Suddenly two large sergeants entered the room and attempted to seize Decker. He tried to run through them. "I tried to run through them," said Decker. "There was a struggle as they grabbed hold of me. They tried to pry and pull my arms apart. I kept squirming and pushing, trying to get away. They finally broke my grip and pulled my arms apart. I kept pushing the best I could until I finally pushed one of them up against a corner of the room.

"Then both men wrapped their legs around mine so I couldn't push or kick anymore. The one man held my arm so I couldn't move at all. The nurse gave me one shot. As she started to give me the second needle, I was able to pry loose enough to squirm a little more. But the men held me even tighter, and she put the second needle in the same arm."

"The doctor got an eye dropper which was filled with red liquid (polio vaccine). The doctor took my bottom lip and pinched it as you would put a twitch on a horse. He pulled my bottom lip down. I kept my teeth together, so he put the medication between my teeth and my lip."

After the ordeal, Colonel Williams grinned, grabbed Decker's hand and said: "No hard feelings."

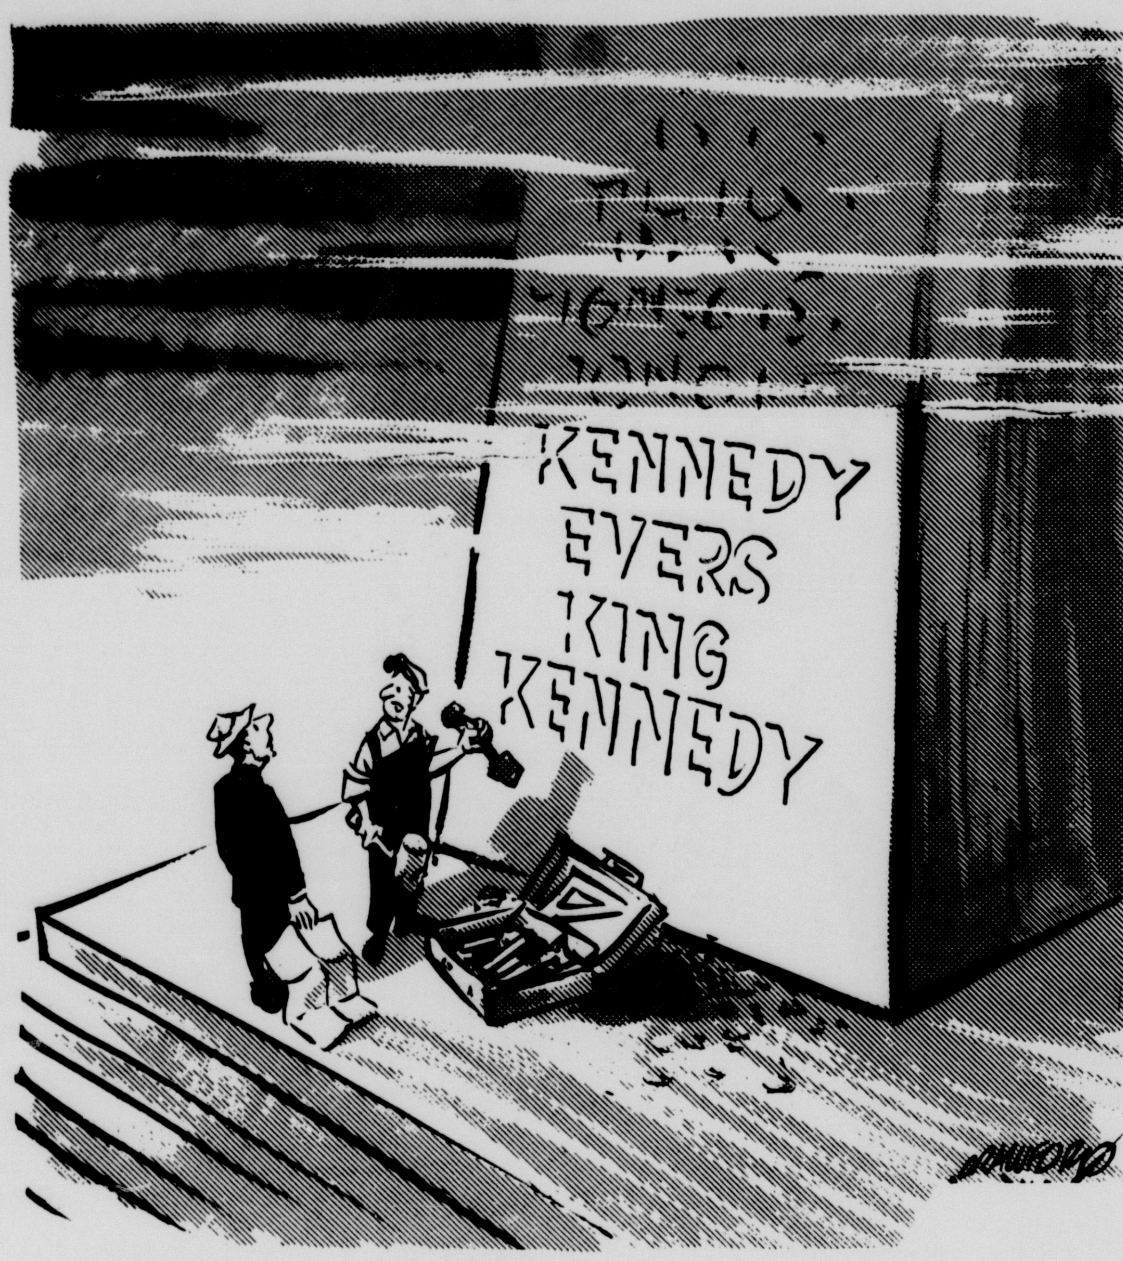

REAGAN'S RECALL MOVEMENT--

Believe it or not but Ronald Reagan, elected governor of California two years ago in a smashing surprise upset, may be out of office before too long. Under California law it's possible to recall a governor, and right now a grass-roots campaign to do exactly that has rolled up a total of 650,000 signatures.

The grass-roots campaign is sparked by Ed and Joyce Koupal of Sacramento. They have hired no canvassers. It's all volunteer work. But opponents of Reagan have been out beating the bushes to the point where they are within 130,000 signatures of their goal. They must have 780,000 signatures by July 31. The Koupals expect to gather about a million signatures in all. They figure they need extra names in case some voters change their mind and ask to be removed from the list.

Volunteer organizations have been set up in all 58 California counties. More than 300,000 names have come from the Los Angeles area alone. Watts

TO KEEP AND BEAR ARMS
by Jenkin
Lloyd Jones

THE proposed gun-control laws being pushed since the assassination of Robert Kennedy have generated a lot of naive hopes and counter hysteria. It might be helpful in arriving at some reasonable conclusion to consider a few axioms:

1-A gun is just a kind of weapon. The unarmed man who faces an opponent with a weapon is at a disadvantage, regardless of what the weapon is.

2-We already have considerable weapons control. It is illegal, for example, to own a machine gun, a mortar or a live grenade. The length of the blades of knives which one may carry on one's person is regulated in many states.

3-Some useful articles may be made into incidental weapons. A broken beer bottle is a vicious thing. So is a bicycle chain. A crowbar makes a deadly club. A man may be strangled with a loop of wire. No law will control such potentially lethal devices.

4-No practical legislation will be totally effective in dismantling professional criminals.
Small-time hoodlums may be able to steal purses from women by strong-arm methods, but armed robbery will continue to be necessary if one wants much of a haul. A man doesn't empty his wallet or his cash register without considerable persuasion.
Too many guns are out now, and guns are easy to produce if criminals are denied other sources.

5-To disarm honest people while leaving weapons in the hands of the underworld will not reduce crime. It would simply reduce the risks run by the criminal.

IF THESE axioms are reasonable then we may proceed to two practical questions: (a) what can be done about gun-toting, and (b) what can be done about gun registration?

Gun-toting includes the practice of carrying a weapon around with no criminal intent.
The old American West, of course, was famous for it, but up until the 19th century few European gentlemen went forth without swords and daggers. The furious musketeer with his rapier was at least as deadly as the drunken cowboy who pulled his Colt in a front St. saloon.

THE rationale of gun-toting was, of course, self-protection.
But there were great disadvantages. Among gun-toters, what would normally be a cussing match or, at worst, a fist fight became a death duel.

THEY are knowledgeable.
They know the intricacies of the labor movement, government and culture as well as their early predecessors knew distant world corners which had not yet been opened to the American market.

One of these "new" men of American industry is United States Steel's outspoken Heath
Larry. Ask him a blunt question, you get a blunt answer. I did just that. I asked him what he thought of labor today.

Here is what this "new"
leader of the steel industry thinks, in his own words:

By R. Heath Larry
Executive Vice President and Assistant to Chairman,
United States Steel Corporation
NEW YORK--Some unions have been contending that one of their biggest worries today is the corporate conglomerate.

The tradition of industrial unions, as we know, has been to try to organize so as to try to blanket entire industries, and hence its employees, will face new labor-cost competition from another industry making a substitute material.

And even if all this source of labor competition were sewed up by one vast monopoly, there would still be the difficult competition provided by similar industries in other parts of the world.

This is a real problem for the United States and its employees today. We are supposed to be the technological stronghold of the world, with an efficiency great enough to out-compete all corners. But we are finding out that whatever advantage we may have had in this direction is no longer enough.

Our balance of trade is disappearing. Our merchandise is losing its competitive advantage.
The plain fact is that our employment costs are rising too fast--much faster than our productivity. We just haven't yet earned the standard of living to which we are currently laying claim.

It is not unreasonable to suppose that many intelligent union leaders are today fully aware that the out-size settlements they have recently been exacting are not in the long-term interests of those whom they represent, to say nothing of being dangerously inflationary and damaging to position of the United States in world trade.

But in unions, as in government, there is often a gap between what is economically desirable and what is politically possible. And the larger the union organization, the wider its span, the greater the gap is likely to be.

So we don't need a further enlargement of the union power base. We don't need more massive power foundations for union leaders to use in creating crises--for otherwise-- when these foundations so often appear to crumble in their efforts to resolve the crises they have produced.

If corporate crossings of industry lines can be even one of the factors which could help in saving union leaders from being victims of a backlash in resentment against a power base which is already over-large and unwieldy, even such leaders might someday be grateful. For in a situation of present inflationary trends can only lead to an assortment of most unhappy possibilities, which could range from controls to series of king-size settlements, devaluation.

There is a big difference between the economic and social conditions which exist today, and those which existed in the depression-ridden '30s when the legal backdrop for today's union power structure was legislated.

In the '30s jobs were scarce--meaningful alternate employment opportunities didn't exist for employees who wanted to protest the conditions under which they were working.
And in many cases those conditions left a lot to be desired.

Today it is different. In implementing the underlying philosophy of the Employment Act of 1946, the government has encouraged inflation by the pursuit of monetary and fiscal policies designed to achieve high aggregate demand and low unemployment.

This has contributed, of course, to a generally strong demand for goods and services, and employees as well--and hence, a wide availability of alternate employment opportunities for nearly anyone with a marketable skill.

But it has also produced a tendency for all wages to drift upward and, in addition, has added a significant leverage to the normal effective power of unions.

No other index of this result is needed than that showing the extent to which employment costs have been rising in excess of productivity trends.

Primarily as a result of a series of king-size settlements, devaluation.

INDEPENDENCE DAY

The 4th of July is upon us again, and there should be a firm rededication to the principles and ideals that brought forth the "great experiment" in human liberty -- the United States.

It is customary to recall with reverence an immortal remark of one of the nation's founders on this most important of dates, but perhaps at this time in our history, it would be more timely to quote a contemporary, an instructor in political science at Mercy College, New York. The professor says, "the Constitution is just a piece of paper which can be scrapped if it has outlived its usefulness. Just like anything else." According to his remarks, as reported in the Portland, Oregon, Journal, the basic political and cultural system of the United States must be revised even if it means a revolution culminating in violence.

Fortunately, the professor is protected by the very Constitution he belittles. Like any other citizen, he may speak his mind without fear, which in itself shows that we have kept faith with the founders of our nation. Because of this faith, the professor may speak with temperance. Our detractors notwithstanding, the 4th of July has a deep meaning for most American citizens, and it will be so commemorated this year as it always has been in the past.

A meal never tastes right if it is prepared by a woman whose hair is stringing about her face.

Out of the mouths of babes comes some pretty spicy language, these days.

QUEEN OF THE SWEEPS

In Irish Derby, which will be run today, is the second of the three races a year on which the Irish Sweepstakes is based. The first, the Lincolnshire, was held March 27. The third, the Cambridgeshire, is scheduled for Oct. 19.

The Irish Sweepstakes is the world's best known lottery. It was established in 1930 to benefit the Irish Hospitals Trust, and more than $450 million in prize money has been distributed to date. Individual prizes are large, but the odds against winning one are even larger.

It is illegal in the United States to import, send through the mails, or ship in interstate commerce any sweepstakes tickets. Nevertheless, thousands of Americans bet in the Irish Sweepstakes every year. Books of tickets are sent from Ireland in modest envelopes bearing no return address but containing a slip of paper indicating where to send a bank draft for the amount wagered.

The Post Office Department's main line of defense against Sweepstakes remittances is the foreign fraud order. This informs local postmasters that envelopes addressed to a suspected Irish Sweepstakes mail drop contain unmailable matter. Envelopes so addressed are returned to the sender. A Post Office spokesman says "several hundred" mail fraud orders a year are issued against Irish Sweepstakes mail drops. Even so, the Department believes that bookies and couriers account for the bulk of the traffic in Sweepstakes tickets.

HONEYMOON: A short period of doting between dating and debting.

Next Thursday is the Fourth of July. What do you suppose our ancestors of that day 192 years ago would think of today's flag burners, conscientious objectors, "peace" demonstrators? Thank God we had young men those days who praised the Lord while passing the ammunition. Those good people of that day, and we are confident our great-grandfathers were among them, never dreamed what a magnificent country they were building, nor what weaklings some of their descendants would be.

SUMMER THOUGHTS

The warming sun and the breezes of spring herald the coming of another summer season. For a large percentage of our population--our young people--the coming of summer means just one thing, the end of school. Every student, whether this summer means lazy days at the old swimming hole, a summer job, baseball in the school yard or the beginning of a career, should keep in mind one thing about the world around him--it is changing more quickly than we can imagine. Academic training can give an invaluable store of knowledge of our history and our heritage, of human relations, of technical matters with concrete commercial value. It can give preparation to meet the world as it exists on the day of graduation. But the day after, the week after, the year after, new knowledge, new reactions, new circumstances will pile up. The summer season may mark the end of school days for three months or for the rest of a person's life, but it does not mark an end to the need for learning and growing in order to keep up with and contribute to the fast paced world around us.

So, find the fun of summer, let it bring exhilaration, refreshment and the perception to find knowledge and understanding in the blooming of a buttercup and the flame of a sunrise as well as in the schoolroom, library or laboratory. Successful living must be based on constant enlargement of all kinds of knowledge.

When people hear a piece of gossip, they never stop to ask, before repeating it: "Is it probable?"

How we all praise the man who lives out of town! And how we abuse our neighbors!

BOTH PARTIES ASKED TO PLEDGE RETENTION OF 14(B)

Grassroots Support Shows Issue Cuts Across Party Lines

The nation's two major political parties will hold conventions in August to nominate Presidential and Vice Presidential candidates and also adopt party platforms.

These national political conventions will be the first to be held since the U.S. Senate -- reflecting the viewpoint of most Democratic, Republican and Independent voters--rejected the bill proposing repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Will the 1968 platforms of the rival political parties include forthright statements on Section 14(b)?

Will those platforms promise retention or repeal of this fundamental provision in our Federal labor law?

With the following 44 words Section 14(b) reaffirms the constitutional right of the people and their State legislatures to outlaw all forms of compulsory unionism by enacting Right To Work laws:

"Nothing in this Act shall be considered as authorizing the execution or application of agreements requiring membership in a labor organization as a condition of employment in any State or Territory in which such execution or application is prohibited by State or Territorial law."

Repeat of Section 14(b) was demanded three years ago by AFL-CIO president George Meany and other labor professionals.

Bowing to intense pressure exerted by an army of Washington-based union lobbyists, a slim majority of the U.S. House of Representatives approved the repeal bill on July 28, 1965.

Later, however, the bill was killed in the Senate by a bipartisan coalition organized by Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen (R-Illinois) and Senator Sam J. Ervin, Jr. (D-North Carolina). The coalition included 23 Democratic and 26 Republicans.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: Army again subjects Pvt. Decker to forcible inoculation; Petition to recall Regan gains momentum; Secretary Rusk tackles mushroom crisis.

WASHINGTON--For the second time in two months, two burly sergeants pinned down Pvt. Richard Decker the other day while an army nurse inoculated him contrary to his religious convictions.

His beliefs are so devout that, rather than submit to the second round of inoculations, he deserted the army and came to us to explain his reasons. He was willing to serve in Vietnam or accept a 20-year sentence at hard labor, he said, rather than violate "the Lord's Commandments."

We persuaded him to return to his post at Fort Knox, Ky., and promised to intervene with the army in his behalf. Although we disagree with his religious views, we told his story to Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor, who took the case up with his top generals.

He called back to report that they had decided Decker would have to be inoculated. We appealed to him to reverse their decision, and he agreed to reconsider the case. While he was reconsidering, here is what happened to Decker.

He was summoned to see Lt. Col. Clark Williams, the post surgeon general, who explained the medical reasons why he should take preventive medicine. A chaplain also tried vainly to persuade Decker to submit to inoculations. The slight, sincere young soldier said he felt the same way about compulsory inoculations as the chaplain might feel about being forced to commit sodomy.

Suddenly two large sergeants entered the room and attempted to seize Decker. "I tried to run through them," said Decker. "There was a struggle as they grabbed hold of me. They tried to pry and pull my arms apart. I kept squirming and pushing, trying to get away. They finally broke my grip and pulled my arms apart. I produced 50,000 signatures. Most of California labor unions have pitched in to help.

The senior citizens association, which worked for Reagan in the 1966 election, is now seeking his recall. Even Nobel Prize winner Dr. Joshua Lederberg, honored for his work on genetics, has been collecting signatures around San Francisco.

Reagan, who aspires to move into the White House in Washington, may be stepping down from the governor's mansion in Sacramento.

If so, he'll be replaced by Lt. Gov. Robert Finch, until a special election can be called.

—MUSHROOMS AND

POLITICS--

Secretary of State Rusk summoned national Chinese Ambassador Chou Shu-Kai to the State Department the other day to talk about--mushrooms.

The ambassador came, all steamed up, and prepared to discuss urgent problems involving the Chinese mainland.

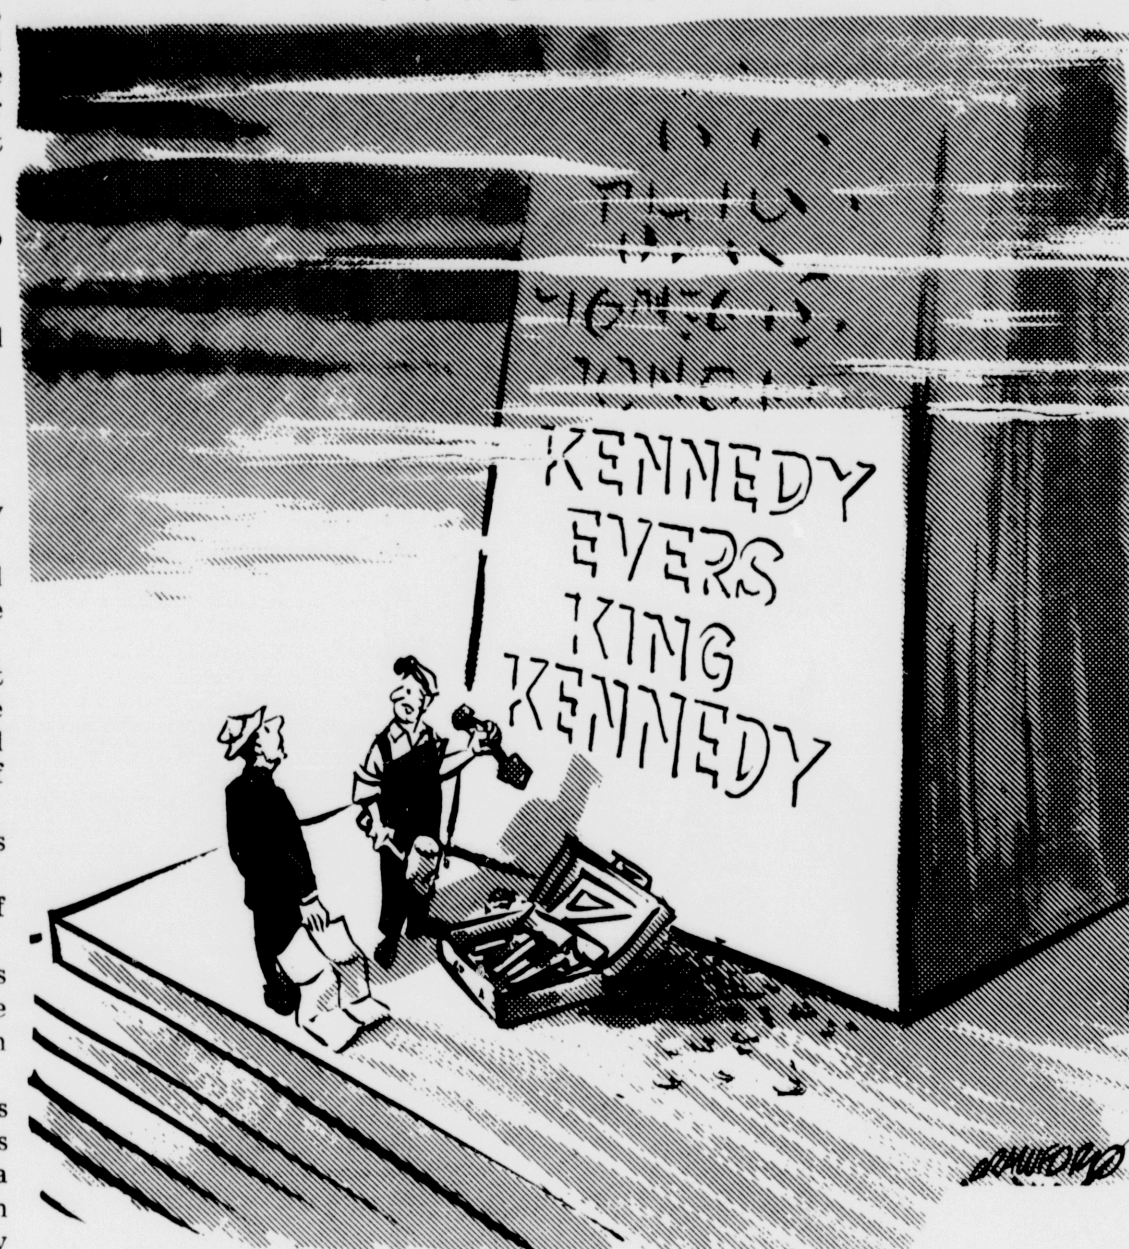

All Secretary Rusk had on his mind, however, was mushrooms. He complained that Formosa was exporting altogether too many mushrooms to the country, and asked the Chinese nationalists to cut back their mushroom shipments.

Puzzled but polite, Ambassador Chou agreed to take up the great mushroom crisis with his government.

Rusk never told the ambassador, however, the real reason he took time out from the pressing problems of peace and war to dicker over mushrooms. He was simply responding to the demands of Rep. Tom Morgan, chairman of the Import House Foreign Affairs committee, who has seemed more interested lately in American mushroom policy than in foreign policy.

Morgan's home state of Pennsylvania happens to be a great mushroom producer. He has been hearing from the Quaker State Mushroom Company and Brandywine Mushroom Company in southeastern Pennsylvania.

TO KEEP AND BEAR ARMS
By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

THE proposed gun-control laws being pushed since the assassination of Robert Kennedy have generated a lot of naive hopes and counter hysteria. It might be helpful in arriving at some reasonable conclusion to consider a few axioms:

1-A gun is just a kind of weapon. The unarmed man who faces an opponent with a weapon is at a disadvantage, regardless of what the weapon is.

2-We already have considerable weapons control. It is illegal, for example, to own a machine gun, a mortar or a live grenade. The length of the blades of knives which one may carry on one's person is regulated in many states.

3-Some useful articles may be made into incidental weapons. A broken beer bottle is a vicious thing. So is a bicycle chain. A crowbar makes a deadly club. A man may be strangled with a loop of wire. No law will control such potentially lethal devices.

4-No practical legislation will be totally effective in disarming professional criminals. Small-time hoodlums may be able to steal purses from women by strong-arm methods, but armed robbery will continue to be necessary if one wants much of a haul. A man doesn't empty his wallet or his cash register without considerable persuasion. Too many guns are out now, and guns are easy to produce if criminals are denied other sources.

5-To disarm honest people while leaving weapons in the hands of the underworld will not reduce crime. It would simply reduce the risks run by the criminal.

IF THESE axioms are reasonable then we may proceed to two practical questions: (a) what can be done about gun-toting, and (b) what can be done about gun registration?

Gun-toting includes the practice of carrying a weapon around with no criminal intent. The old American West, of course, was famous for it, but up until the 19th century few European gentlemen went forth without swords and daggers. The furious musketeer with his rapier was at least as deadly as the drunken cowboy who pulled his Colt in a Front St. saloon.

THE rationale of gun-toting was, of course, self-protection. But there were great disadvantages. Among gun-toters, what would normally be a cussing match or, at worst, a fist fight became a death duel.

Although the right "to keep and bear arms" is written into Article II of the Bill of Rights, the overwhelming majority of Americans willingly gave up their touting privileges in the interest of common safety.

But the desire to carry guns stands in direct relation to the crime rate. Where law has broken down the urge for self-protection increases. If we fail to apprehend or adequately punish criminal gun-toters, most Americans will eventually take to the pistol. Thus, even the Supreme Court has reaffirmed the right of policemen to frisk suspects for weapons. But we'll not get very far until people carrying guns without permits are actually jailed.

IN SPITE of considerable hysteria by members of the National Rifle Assn., only a few bubble-heads are proposing that honest Americans be required to turn in their guns. But the casual sale of guns to anybody via mail order is about to come to an end and there is great agitation for more effective gun registration.

Neither will stop crime. It would be silly to imagine that Lee Oswald, James Earl Ray and Sirhan Sirhan couldn't have found weapons under any gun-control law. But California's gun registration system made possible Sirhan's early identification even when he wouldn't talk.

A scare argument against central gun registration is that it would enable a conqueror or a home-grown dictatorship to search out every honest gun possessor. True. But the weapons available to any future authority will be so awesome and the task of obliterating whole neighborhoods will be so easy that it is doubtful if squirrel rifles and target pistols in the hands of individuals will be of much use anyway.

IT WOULD seem reasonable, therefore, that no American should be permitted to possess a gun without placing the gun's serial number and the identity and fingerprints of the current owner on public record. Further, a test slug from all rifled weapons should be fired into cotton by the manufacturer and preserved for the gun's own "fingerprints." Serial numbers, of course, can be filed away, and barrels can be rebored. There is no total answer.

Nevertheless, if there are heavy penalties for illegal gun possession and if the courts learn to treat armed robbery for what it is--a crime where the criminal has prepared himself to kill--we can make this fine and beautiful country substantially safer.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Says U.S. Has No Need of unit labor costs in the private Bigger Union Power Centers. Industry today, despite the imagery conjured up by such university philosophers and passing commentators on the passing scene as Professor John Kenneth Galbraith, has its full quota of thinking men.

They are knowledgeable. They know the intricacies of the labor movement, government and culture as well as their early predecessors knew distant world corners which had not yet been opened to the American market.

One of these "new" men of American industry is United States Steel's outspoken Heath Larry. Ask him a blunt question, you get a blunt answer. I did just that. I asked him what he thought of labor today.

Here is what this "new" leader of the steel industry thinks, in his own words:

By R. Heath Larry, Executive Vice President and Assistant to Chairman, United States Steel Corporation

NEW YORK--Some unions have been contending that one of their biggest worries today is the corporate conglomerate.

The tradition of industrial unions, as we know, has been to try to organize so as to try to blanket entire industries, this labor-cost competition from enable them to influence wage structures within an industry with minimal concern for the disciplines of the competitive market.

Thus unions now appear to fear that if the business scope of corporations increasingly crosses several industry boundaries, a dominant position in bargaining with such corporations cannot so easily be achieved--unless somehow the unions can amalgamate into a common front all of the separate unions which may represent the various employees of a single corporation, regardless of the difference in the competitive markets which influence their future.

Should they succeed, there is a strong likelihood that no one will be the winner. This country doesn't need any further enlargement of union power centers.

Rather the question is how well our economy can progress in light of the union power centers which already exist.

There is a big difference between the economic and social conditions which exist today, and those which existed in the depression-ridden '30s when the legal backdrop for today's union power structure was legislated.

In the '30s jobs were scarce--meaningful alternate employment opportunities didn't exist for employees who wanted to protest the conditions under which they were working. And in many cases those conditions left a lot to be desired.

Today it is different. In implementing the underlying philosophy of the Employment Act of 1946, the government has encouraged inflation by the pursuit of monetary and fiscal policies designed to achieve high aggregate demand and low unemployment.

This has contributed, of course, to a generally strong demand for goods and services, and employees as well--and hence, a wide availability of alternate employment opportunities with a marketable skill.

But it has also produced a tendency for all wages to drift upward and, in addition, has added a significant leverage to the normal effective power of unions.

No other index of this result is needed than that showing the extent to which employment costs have been rising in excess of productivity trends.

Primarily as a result of a series of king-size settlements, massive power foundations for union leaders to use in creating crises--intra-industry, multi-industry, or otherwise--when these foundations so often appear to crumble in their efforts to resolve the crises they have produced.

If corporate crossings of industry lines can be even one of the factors which could help in saving union leaders from being victims of a backlash in resentment against a power base which is already over-large and unwieldy, even such leaders might someday be grateful. For a continuation of the present inflationary trends can only lead to an assortment of the most unhappy possibilities, which could range from controls to devaluation.

The POWER of FAITH BY WOODI ISHMAEL

Three years before David died he made Solomon, his son, co-regent and upon David's death Solomon became king of a united Israel. He was a gifted yet humble man. At Gideon the Lord appeared to Solomon in a dream, and said, "Ask what I shall give thee." Feeling uncertain of his high position Solomon answered, "Give therefore thy servant an understanding heart to judge thy people, that I may discern between good and bad."

His judgment in the dispute as to which of the two women was rightful mother of the child and the many stories of his wisdom attest to the fulfillment of his dream. He built great temples, developed mining and smelting operations and became a world trader with a great fleet of ships. His 40-year reign was in a stable and prosperous kingdom. His prayer in First Kings 8: 23-53 gives evidence of the piety and constancy of his faith:

"Lord God of Israel there is no God like thee, in heaven above or on earth beneath, who keepest covenant and mercy with thy servants that walk before thee with all their heart..."

WHEN THE SHINE GROWS DULL

Most of us are a strange package, constructed with our hurts, and painted with our loves and patched-up failures. When the shine grows dull we polish it up with a few minor successes and an effort at conventional politeness. We try this again and again until our effort ceases to produce even the faintest gloss. There we meet ourselves. And there we meet God. Then we begin to come out of the valley of death into the light and find a deep glow that does not fade into dullness. Have you found it?

Sue Litrell is Graduated From St. Louis Job Corps
Sue Litrell, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Litrell, former residents of Sikeston, was graduated Wednesday from the St. Louis Job Corps Center for Women after passing the Missouri State high school equivalency examinations.

Sue, who enrolled at the Center in June 1967, first enrolled in the Center's nurse aide program, mastering such techniques as taking blood pressures, taking temperatures and patient care. As part of her training, she worked for a short period in the Center infirmary and at a St. Louis nursing home.

A high school dropout, Sue decided to enroll in the General Education Development program, which prepares the students for the high school equivalency examinations.

Sue joined Job Corps because she wanted to learn a trade and finish her education. She was recruited by the Sikeston branch of Women in Community Service (WICS), a national volunteer organization that recruits and screens young women for Job Corps.

The St. Louis Job Corps reported in the Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Following the formal closing, the group was served jello cake by Mrs. Akins.

The next meeting will be Sept. 10.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kaullen, 122 Maplewood, have had as their guest her sister, Miss Catherine Krier, Chicago. Miss Krier also visited her niece, Mrs. Jack Marshall and her family in Ste. Genevieve.

Beban Tests Arm At East's Expense

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Gary Beban, king of last fall's college football heroes but snubbed in the first round of the pro draft, has quieted some of the critics who questioned his passing arm.

The Heisman Trophy winner from UCLA displayed a deadly passing touch Friday night and led the West to a 34-20 victory over the East in the eighth annual Coaches All-America Football game.

Beban was only the 30th player picked in the draft by pro teams despite his impressive college credentials, with some pro coaches critical of his passing.

"I wasn't bothered about what people had said about my passing," Beban said. "But I wanted to do something about it."

"I'm satisfied now," added the dark-haired youngster who will play in the College All-Star game in Chicago later this summer before joining the Washington Redskins of the National Football League.

Beban hit on 15 of 20 passes for 222 yards and two touchdowns, and his second scoring strike cracked a 20-20 tie in the game watched by a crowd of 21,120 in 80-degree weather. The go-ahead touchdown was a 44-yard toss to Arizona State's Ken Dyer.

Beban had thrown a 29-yard touchdown pass to Tulsa's Rick Eber earlier in the explosive game which started with a 77-yard punt return by Jimmy Smith of Oregon which gave the West a 7-0 lead.

Minnesota's John Williams recovered a teammate's fumble in the end zone for another touchdown for the West, and quarterback Billy Stevens of Texas El Paso added the clincher in the final minutes on a one-yard plunge.

Larry Csonka, burly Syracuse fullback, and quarterback Greg Landry of Massachusetts were the standouts for the East. Csonka rushed 26 times—record for the game—and gained 88 yards. He also caught three passes for 41 yards.

He scored twice on plunges and was named the game's most valuable player, an award Beban said "he probably deserved."

Landry hit on 16 of 24 throws for 160 yards, and scored the East's other touchdown on a two-yard plunge.

Beban Tests Arm At East's Expense

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Gary Beban, king of last fall's college football heroes but snubbed in the first round of the draft, has quieted some of the critics who questioned his passing arm. The Heisman Trophy winner from UCLA displayed a deadly passing touch Friday night and led the West to a 34-20 victory over the East in the eighth annual Coaches All-America football game.

Beban was only the 30th player picked in the draft by pro teams despite his impressive college credentials, with some pro coaches critical of his passing.

"I wasn't bothered about what people had said about my passing," Beban said. "But I wanted to do something about it."

"I'm satisfied now," added the dark-haired youngster who will play in the College All-Star game in Chicago later this summer before joining the Washington Redskins of the National Football League.

Beban hit on 15 of 20 passes for 222 yards and two touchdowns, and his second scoring strike cracked a 20-20 tie in the game watched by a crowd of 21,120 in 80-degree weather. The go-ahead touchdown was a 44-yard toss to Arizona State's Ken Dyer.

Beban had thrown a 29-yard touchdown pass to Tulsa's Rick Eber earlier in the explosive game which started with a 77-yard punt return by Jimmy Smith of Oregon which gave the West a 7-0 lead.

Minnesota's John Williams recovered a teammate's fumble in the end zone for another touchdown for the West, and quarterback Billy Stevens of Texas El Paso added the clincher in the final minutes on a one-yard plunge.

Larry Csonka, burly Syracuse fullback, and quarterback Greg Landry of Massachusetts were the standouts for the East. Csonka rushed 26 times for a record for the game—and gained 88 yards. He also caught three passes for 41 yards.

He scored twice on plunges and was named the game's most valuable player, an award Beban said "he probably deserved."

Landry hit on 16 of 24 throws for 160 yards, and scored the East's other touchdown on a two-yard plunge.

BOB VANATTA, center, director of his own basketball camp at Mexico, Mo., with Larry and Dennis Wolfe of Lilbourn during the first session, June 14-20. Larry Wolfe won the free throw competition with 19 out of 20 and finished second in the jump shot competition in the older boys group. Lenny Wilkins of the Atlanta Hawks served as guest instructor and also will serve at the August session. The Wolfes are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Wolfe of Lilbourn.

NFL Players Holding To Demands

DETROIT (AP) — Representatives of players and owners of National Football League teams have refused to comment on their secret meeting Friday to discuss complaints and a possible strike by the some 540 league players.

An Associated Press newsman and an area newspaper photographer both were asked to leave the Pine Lake Country Club just outside Keego Harbor, Mich., where the meeting was held.

Vince Lombardi, general manager of the Green Bay Packers, and Detroit Lions guard John Gordy, president of the NFL Players Association, refused to comment on the talks. Gordy said he might make a statement after meeting owners' representatives early today.

"I thought this was supposed to be a well-kept secret," Lombardi said when a newsman arrived at the club.

Plans and location of the meeting reportedly had been kept secret in the belief that negotiations would be smoother without publicity.

The NFL Players seeks a minimum salary similar to that of the major league players. NFL players now get an allowance of $10 a day when in training or playing an exhibition game. They seek $500 each for all exhibition games.

In addition, the association asks that each club contribute $100,000 to the pension plan and pay a $15,000 minimum salary.

Managements of the 16 clubs have contended the demands are excessive, not commensurate with what the clubs now take in.

The Players Association has asked to be shown which team profit margins cannot support payment of the proposed contributions.

The Associated Press learned Thursday that all NFL players had been polled by telephone and that most were willing to strike if their demands were not met.

NAWILIWILI, Kauai, Hawaii (AP) — Three golf enthusiasts played 100 holes each Saturday at the Kauai Surf Resort course to observe the longest day of the year.

One, Honolulu Star-Bulletin columnist Jim Becker, said, "No useful purpose was served, but we had fun."

The other two were Bob Herkes, vice president of InterIsland Resorts, and club pro Bill Schwallie.

They played the nine hole course 11 times—with one extra hole—and completed the marathon in 12 hours and 5 minutes.

The winner was Schwallie, who played the first 72 holes in a one-over-par 281. He finished the 100 holes five over par.

STARKVILLE, Miss. AP — Tom Sawyer resigned as tennis coach at Mississippi State Tuesday. He will continue as professor of history.

In commenting on recent full-page ads in metropolitan newspapers urging readers to lobby Senator Long to vote for stronger gun laws, Stegner noted, "sportsmen, too, favor keeping guns out of the hands of criminals and other incompetents" as advocated in the ad. Stiffer penalties, however, will do more to stop criminals than a ban on mail order gun sales or gun registration. He further does not believe that the will of 85% of the citizens have been blocked by the National Rifle Association or any other organization as the ad contends. He believes a large majority of citizens favor Congress using cool heads and sound judgment at this time and are opposed to federal gun registration laws. Stegner said he is not opposed to laws requiring the gun owner to prove he is an honest law-abiding citizen. This might slow down the purchase of a gun and thereby stop some spur-of-the-moment crimes.

He concluded by saying he hoped Congress would consider what effect pending legislation would have on crime and what effect it would have on law-abiding citizens. He added that he hopes the citizens of our state will make their views known to their lawmakers in Washington, whatever these views might be.

EDINBURG, Tex. AP — Pan American College changed the name of its Christmas holiday basketball tourney Tuesday. This year's tourney on Dec. 27-28 will be called the Citrus Classic.

Homers Dominate In 9-5 Card Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO (AP) — After his team outshelled the Chicago Cubs 9-5 Friday, St. Louis Cardinals centerfielder Curt Flood said the Redbirds try harder because they want to finish number one twice.

"We want to win back-to-back pennants, because that's the sign of a great ball club," Flood figured.

The sign came to the fore as Orlando Cepeda and Mike Shannon each cracked two-run homers in the fifth inning to erase a 2-2 tie. It was Cepeda's 11th of the year, Shannon's 10th. Flood himself moved up in the St. Louis record book by bringing his career total of hits to 1,591 with two safeties in the game. It made him seventh on the list of all-time Cardinals hit producers, bettering the mark established by Hall-of-Famer Joe Medwick.

Lou Brock opened the gates with a lead-off homer off loser Ferguson Jenkins. Flood singled in the frame, stole second, and came in on the first of Bobby Tolan's three hits.

The fading Cubs, 14 games off the pace, tied it with a run in the first and another in the fourth, then closed it to 7-5 in the seventh with a two-run homer by Randy Hundley, and a solo by Adolpho Phillips. Winning pitcher Nelson Briles was yanked in favor of young Wayne Granger, who gave up only a walk in three innings.

To put the game out of reach, the Cards added two runs in the eighth.

Elsewhere in the National League, Houston thwarted New York's latest bid to reach the 500 mark by trimming the Mets 7-2. Atlanta blanked Los Angeles 3-0. San Francisco downed Cincinnati 4-3 and St. Louis slugged the Chicago Cubs 9-5.

The Pittsburgh pennant coup that became a Philadelphia bargain finally swung a little in the Pirates' direction ... when Jim Bunning got in the swing against his old pals.

Bunning and Woody Fryman, the principals in a multiplayer winter trade between the Pirates and Phillies, pitched against each other for the first time this season Friday night at Philadelphia.

But the anticipated duel deteriorated into a 10-1 romp for the Pirates and Bunning, who scattered eight hits and knocked in three runs with a double and single on the way to his first victory since May 6.

California swept an American League doubleheader from Washington 4-3 and 1-0 in 11 innings. Detroit edged the Chicago White Sox 5-4 before their doubleheader nightcap was rained out. Minnesota beat Baltimore 5-2 and Oakland nipped the New York Yankees 3-2. Cleveland and Boston were rained out.

Bunning, whose arrival in Pittsburgh was looked upon as the salvation of the Pirates' troubled pitching staff, took a 3-9 record and a 3.69 earned run average into his first appearance against his former teammates. Plagued by groin and ankle injuries, the 36-year-old right-hander had lost seven in a row.

Fryman, the 28-year-old southpaw who went to the Phillies with three others in exchange for Bunning, had rebounded from a 3-8 season at Pittsburgh by winning 10 of 16 decisions this year. He was 7-0 in Connie Mack Stadium and had a brilliant ERA of 1.81.

Right-hander Larry Dierker stymied the Mets, giving up three singles and a run in the first inning and then scattering six more hits the rest of the way.

Rusty Staub's two-run double and a sacrifice fly by Doug Rader sent the Astros in front 3-1 in the bottom of the ninth. They clipped rookie Nolan Ryan for two more runs in the fifth before pulling away from Dierker's run-scoring soubel in the sixth and Jim Wynn's seventh inning homer.

Milt Pappas stopped the Dodgers on four hits, disappointing a Bat Night crowd of 51,747 at Los Angeles.

Prison Runs 'Halfway House'

This is the Colorado Parole Release Center, the last stop for prisoners soon to be paroled to go off to their homes, their families and — hopefully — honest jobs.

Men who have committed crimes can get help here in making the transition to life in law-abiding society. "We try to de-emphasize institution living," said Leo D. Jenkins, the youthful-looking supervisor.

Before the Parole Center was opened nine years ago, there was no provision for readjustment for a man about to leave prison confinement.

Jenkins, a tall man of 35 with thick, dark-blond hair, said Colorado's center is not the only one in the country and not the first. "But we feel we do a more comprehensive job here," Wayne K. Patterson, now warden of the prison, fathered the idea for the center when he was in charge of adult parole for the state.

Each Wednesday 10 or a dozen prisoners are brought to the center from the main prison or other parts of the penitentiary complex. They will spend their last 35 to 40 days at the center, a long, cheerful ranch-type structure of light-colored brick and many windows.

The center houses a maximum of 68 men, including eight carefully selected trustees making up the working staff. These trustees are sent to the center for the last 18 months of their sentences. They include two cooks, a barber, plumber, gardener, laundry worker, librarian and floor maintenance man.

Visits and Shopping
Other prisoners due for release shortly help in chores around the center. They are entitled to daylong visits from their families on weekends and holidays. On these days they can frolic with their children on the front lawn or in a nearby playground.

Each man at the center has a room to himself and carries a key for the door lock. He can jingle as much as $2 in his pockets, something forbidden in prison. No longer does he have to wear prison garb with his last name and his number stenciled on shirt and jacket. He can put on sport shirts, jackets or suits brought by relatives or friends.

In the last 10 days of their stay 12 men at a time may go shopping in Canon City, four miles away. They make the trip in two station wagons driven by employees of the center. They are given 2½ hours to visit stores before gathering at a central meeting place, but drug stores and liquor shops are off limits.

Suitcases and clothing are the favorite purchases. Jenkins recalled that one prisoner in a single shopping spree spent $700 of the $1,200 he had saved in his prison account. He had ordered several tailor-made suits beforehand.

28 Class Sessions
At the center 28 different two-hour classroom sessions are held. Some deal with employment opportunities and companies that won't hire ex-convicts. For instance, a paroled man cannot get a state job in Colorado.

Outside lecturers talk on such things as alcoholism, family life, wardrobe tips, how to spend leisure time. A banker discusses sensible spending and borrowing. Women speakers are well-received. One of the most popular recently was Debbie Drake, a shapely young woman who conducts exercise classes on television.

Jenkins said he feels "there is less prejudice among employers against hiring men who have been in prison. It's a far better situation than it was even 10 years ago."

"More than half of those at the center have jobs promised before they leave. All paroled prisoners must show they have a way of getting along — a place to live before they are released. They are not turned out on the streets."

Asked about any really "hard cases" he has had at the center, Jenkins quickly recalled two. One was a tough long-termer of whom Associate Warden Chet Yeo said, "If you can do something for that guy, there is hope for all of them."

Another was a prisoner who had been behind bars for 22 years before he was 40. He seemed afraid to leave the prison, would commit infractions that killed his good time off.

Finally the prisoner was induced to learn welding at a medium security unit, then spent nine months — far longer than usual — at the Parole Center. He was allowed to drive a truck on work jobs, the first time he'd been behind a wheel in almost a quarter century. At last he was paroled and went with relatives to Albuquerque, where at last reports he was working and staying out of trouble.

"We admit the Parole Center does not furnish all the answers," Jenkins said. "We know that not all of the men who come through here are going straight. Probably some of them right now are planning their next crime."

U.S. POPULATION IMBALANCE FAVORS (?) WOMEN

Good news for finicky males of the nation: The number of adult women in the United States will continue to increase more rapidly than the number of adult men, according to Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. statistics. More and more women have been returning to the labor force after their children are settled in school or are old enough to be on their own. It is expected proportion of women aged 35-64 in the labor force will exceed 50 per cent in the 1970s.

Concrete Building Was First A Knife-Gouged Clay Model

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. (AP) — This Denver suburb boasts a building resembling a split pumpkin that may pioneer concrete architecture.

The Concrete Reinforcing Steel Institute of Chicago says the structure "defies geometric description."

Designed by Charles Deaton of Denver, the bowl-like building's graceful lines create what architect Deaton calls a "strictly non-representational form."

Deaton first molded the model in clay. A knife and sculptor's wire loop then gouged out entry window "portholes" and three terraces in its two stories.

From clay it became a plastic model and preliminary architectural drawing. These led to structural studies that decided the amount, position, size and strength of the steel bars that support the eight-inch thick concrete shell.

Before the reinforcing steel was covered with wire mesh and sprayed with concrete, the building resembled a king-size lions' cage at the zoo.

F.S. Clough, managing director of the institute, a trade association of reinforcing steel fabricators, terms the structure "a vibrant testimonial to the beauty possible only through reinforced concrete."

Thirty-two feet in height, the savings and loan building has 10,000 square feet of floor space devoted to a 44 by 44-foot lobby, five private offices, five teller windows and a large conference room. Now the building is an architectural counterpoint to the rugged Denver terrain surrounding mile-high

Prison Runs 'Halfway House'

This is the Colorado Preparole Release Center, the last stop for prisoners soon to be paroled to go off to their homes, their families and hopefully to honest jobs. Men who have committed crimes can get help here in making the transition to life in law-abiding society. "We try to de-emphasize institution living," said Leo D. Jenkins, the youthful-looking supervisor.

Before the Preparole Center was opened nine years ago, there was no provision for readjustment for a man about to leave prison confinement.

Jenkins, a tall man of 35 with thick, dark-blond hair, said Colorado's center is not the only one in the country and not the first, "but we feel we do a more comprehensive job here." Wayne K. Patterson, now warden of the prison, fathered the idea for the center when he was in charge of adult parole for the state.

Each Wednesday 10 or a dozen prisoners are brought to the center from the main prison or other parts of the penitentiary complex. They will spend their last 35 to 40 days at the center, a long, cheerful ranch-type structure of light-color brick and many windows.

The center houses a maximum of 68 men, including eight carefully selected trustees making up the working staff. These trustees are sent to the center for the last 18 months of their sentences. They include two cooks, a barber, plumber, gardener, laundry worker, librarian and floor maintenance man.

Visits and Shopping
Other prisoners due for release shortly help in chores around the center. They are entitled to daylong visits from their families on weekends and holidays. On these days they can frolic with their children on the front lawn or in a nearby playground.

Each man at the center has a room to himself and carries a key for the door lock. He can jingle as much as $2 in his pockets, something forbidden in prison. No longer does he have to wear prison garb with his last name and his number stenciled on shirt and jacket. He can put on sport shirts, jackets or suits brought by relatives or friends.

In the last 10 days of their stay 12 men at a time may go shopping in Canon City, four miles away. They make the trip in two station wagons driven by employees of the center. They are given 2½ hours to visit stores before gathering at a central meeting place, but drug stores and liquor shops are off limits.

Suitcases and clothing are the favorite purchases. Jenkins recalled that one prisoner in a single shopping spree spent $700 of the $1,200 he had saved in his prison account. He had ordered several tailor-made suits beforehand.

28 Class Sessions
At the center 28 different two-hour classroom sessions are held. Some deal with employment opportunities and companies that won't hire ex-convicts. For instance, a paroled man cannot get a state job in Colorado.

Outside lecturers talk on such things as alcoholism, family life, wardrobe tips, how to spend leisure time. A banker discusses sensible spending and borrowing. Women speakers are well-received. One of the most popular recently was Debbie Drake, a shapely young woman who conducts exercise classes on television.

Jenkins said he feels "there is less prejudice among employers against hiring men who have been in prison. It's a far better situation than it was even 10 years ago."

"More than half of those at the center have jobs promised before they leave. All paroled prisoners must show they have a way of getting along a place to live before they are released. They are not turned out on the streets."

Asked about any really "hard cases" he has had at the center, Jenkins quickly recalled two. One was a tough long-term of whom Associate Warden Chet Yeo said, "If you can do something for that guy, there is hope for all of them."

Another was a prisoner who had been behind bars for 22 years before he was 40. He seemed afraid to leave the prison, would commit infractions that killed his good time off.

Finally the prisoner was induced to learn welding at a medium security unit, then spent nine months far longer than usual at the Preparole Center. He was allowed to drive a truck on work jobs, the first time he'd been behind a wheel in almost a quarter century. At last he was paroled and went with relatives to Albuquerque, where at last reports he was working and staying out of trouble.

"We admit the Preparole Center does not furnish all the answers," Jenkins said. "We know that not all of the men who come through here are going straight. Probably some of them right now are planning their next crime."

about 31 per cent of the prisoners moving through the center, Jenkins said, come back to prison either as parole violators or on sentences for new crimes.

"But we feel that what is done here for men about to tackle the outside world again," he said, "keeps a lot of them from ever coming back."

The Texas Rangers have no uniforms, the only standardized features of their dress being six-shooter and saddle gun.

A PAROLED PRISONER from the Colorado Penitentiary is greeted by his wife and children outside the front door of the Colorado Preparole Release Center. Prisoners soon to be paroled are sent to the center from other parts of the prison complex for 35 to 40 days to help accustom themselves to life "on the outside."

U.S. POPULATION IMBALANCE FAVORS (?) WOMEN

Good news for finicky males of the nation: The number of adult women in the United States will continue to increase more rapidly than the number of adult men, according to Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. statistics. More and more women have been returning to the labor force after their children are settled in school or are old enough to be on their own. It is expected proportion of women aged 35-64 in the labor force will exceed 50 per cent in the 1970s.

HEMISFAIR-MINDED — The jacket dress, tailored by Clifton Wilhite in pink cotton ottoman, is tops in versatility. A wide cummerbund set off by gold buttons defines the waist, and the button motif is repeated on the double-breasted jacket.

MAJOR ON THE MOVE
LOVELL, Wyo. (AP) — Clyde Reynolds, a lumber dealer, has been elected to a third term as mayor — all in different Wyoming towns.

Reynolds was chosen mayor of Glenrock in 1956, Shoshoni in 1964 and Lovell this year.

Concrete Building Was First A Knife-Gouged Clay Model

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. (AP) — This Denver suburb boasts a building resembling a split pumpkin that may pioneer concrete architecture.

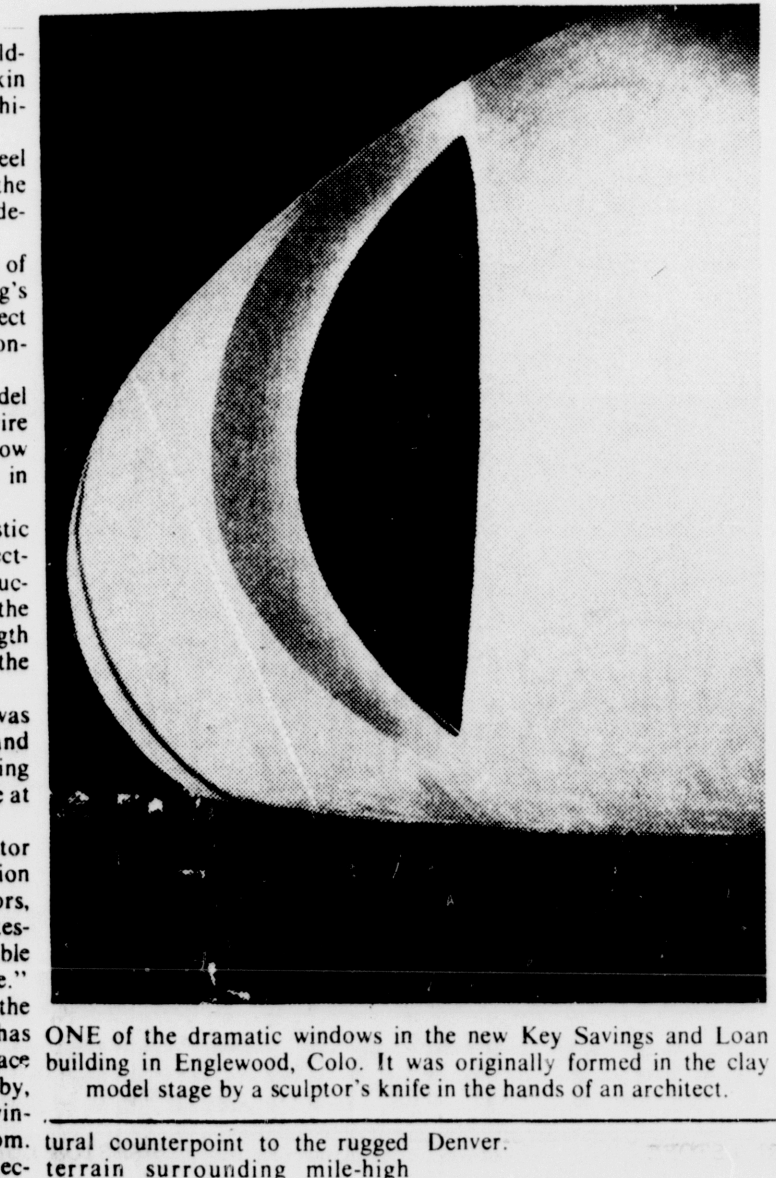

The Concrete Reinforcing Steel Institute of Chicago says the structure "defies geometric description."

Designed by Charles Deaton of Denver, the bowl-like building's graceful lines create what architect Deaton calls a "strictly non-representational form."

Deaton first molded the model in clay. A knife and sculptor's wire loop then gouged out entry window "portholes" and three terraces in its two stories.

From clay it became a plastic model and preliminary architectural drawing. These led to structural studies that decided the amount, position, size and strength of the steel bars that support the eight-inch thick concrete shell.

Before the reinforcing steel was covered with wire mesh and sprayed with concrete, the building resembled a king-size lions' cage at the zoo.

ONE of the dramatic windows in the new Key Savings and Loan building in Englewood, Colo. It was originally formed in the clay model stage by a sculptor's knife in the hands of an architect.

Ann Landers

Bride-to-Be Advised to Tell of Homosexual Past

Dear Ann Landers: I'm in love for the very first time. Tim is 35. I am 29. Neither of us has ever been married. It's as if we've been waiting for one another all these years.

Problem: When I was 18 I became involved with a group of homosexuals. Many were older than I. Some were highly respected professional people -- creative and interesting. I ran with this crowd for two years but maintained my other friendships also. After awhile I decided I didn't want to live in the shadows. I decided to give up my homosexual friends and go completely straight.

I couldn't afford psychiatric help so I went to my minister. He gave me the strength and courage I needed to break away from my homo friends. It was not easy but I was determined to win the battle and I did.

Question: Should I tell Tim? I feel he would still love me and it would not jeopardize our wedding plans. What do you say? -- LUCKY AND THANKFUL

Dear Lucky: Tell him. But don't be surprised if he already knows. Such information has a way of getting around.

I strongly recommend that you ask your physician for reading material on homosexuality. You (and thousands of others who have written to me) do not know the difference between homosexuality and bi-sexuality. There's an enormous amount of ignorance on this subject.

Dear Ann Landers: Several months ago our daughter (20) and her steady boyfriend, who is a very nice chap and comes from a fine family, told us as follows: "We are sorry it had to happen like this but there's a baby on the way and we want to get married right away."

If I told you were weren't shocked and disappointed I would be lying. But we decided to hold our heads high and do the best we could. Our daughter and the boy asked for a church wedding, white gown and all, but wanted only the immediate family present. We agreed.

Now, several of our friends have mentioned they have heard rumors that our daughter is pregnant. I have been evasive but realize I must say something soon because the bride will be showing before long.

DEXTER - Lonnie Mason, trigger and the bullet struck Mason's right foot", the report said.

Clark and Davis arrived at the scene at about this time, police said and captured Brothers as he was running toward the bus station, and he was lodged in jail.

Mason was taken to a Dexter physician and was then sent to a Poplar Bluff hospital for x-rays. The shot did not shatter any bones in his foot and he is now recuperating at home.

Brothers was charged with "disturbing the peace, intoxication, resisting an officer, and attempting to fight an officer".

Mason put Brothers in the car and had started to the jail when Brothers leaped from the automobile and got into a car with a group of boys. Mason pursued the car while Clark summoned help from Howard Davis, another night officer.

Mason stopped the car in which Brothers was riding and Brothers refused to accompany the policeman. As Mason was attempting to handcuff Brothers the suspect began "swinging and hitting with his fists". Mason reported, adding, "Brothers attempted to hit the officer when Mason backed away and drew his gun. At about this time Mason accidentally pulled the

Today In U.S. History

Today is Saturday, June 29, the 181st day of 1968. There are 185 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1939, the first commercial airplane flight from the United States to Europe was completed as the "Dixie Clipper" landed at Lisbon, Portugal.

On this date—In 1577, the Flemish painter, Peter Paul Rubens, was born.

In 1613, William Shakespeare's Globe Theater in London burned during a performance of "Henry VIII."

In 1858, the U.S. Army Engineer who headed construction of the Panama Canal, George Washington Goethals, was born.

In 1880, France took control of the South Pacific island of Tahiti.

In 1941, former Polish Premier Ignace Paderewski died in New York at the age of 80.

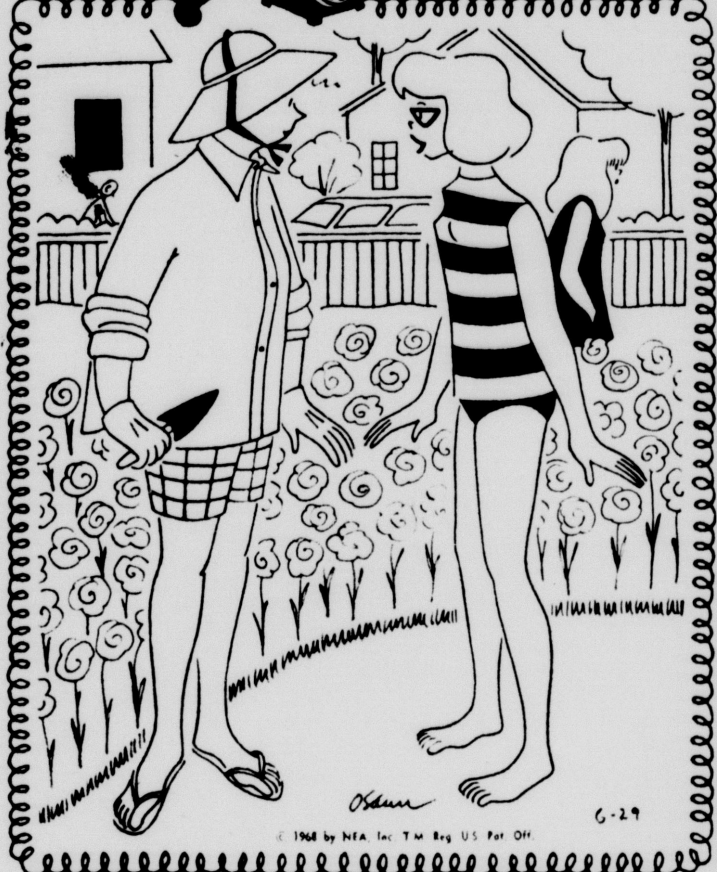

In 1945, in the attempt to stamp out alleged terrorism, the British arrested more than 2,700 Jews in Palestine.

Ten years ago, rebel attacks against the government of Lebanon were turned back at Beirut.

Five years ago, the Soviet Union demanded the recall of three officials of the Chinese embassy in Moscow on grounds they were spreading anti-Soviet propaganda.

One year ago, actress Jayne Mansfield was killed in a highway crash near New Orleans, La.

MEMBERS AND FRIENDS OF

RNA

We wish to take this opportunity to thank the many members and friends of Scott-New Madrid-Mississippi Co-Operative Association for their attendance at our annual meeting and appliance fair at Armory Park in Sikeston. The interest shown in providing farmers of this area with a dependable supply of electricity was most encouraging.

We especially wish to thank the appliance and implement exhibitors and all others who in any way contributed to the success of the annual meeting.
